DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of claims 1-4, 9-20, and 25-31, in Paper No. 5 and alkylolation in the telephone conversation of 6/9/03 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 9, 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Subramaniam et al (5,907,075).

The process as called for in claim 1 is improved by using a solid catalyst having a surface area of from about 50-400 m²/g.

Subramaniam discloses an alkylolation process in the presence of a solid catalyst having a surface area of from 5-1000 m²/g under supercritical conditions at a temperature of from about 0.9-1.3 Tc.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1764

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Subramaniam et al (5,907,075).

Subramaniam discloses a process as discussed above.

Subramaniam does not disclose employing a pressure as called for in claims 11 and 12. However, Subramaniam discloses that the pressure exceeds the critical pressure (col. 2, lines 13-14.

Art Unit: 1764

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the Subramaniam process by selecting a pressure higher than the critical pressure to arrive at the applicants' claimed pressure.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Subramaniam et al (5,907,075) in view of McClure et al (4,056,578).

Subramaniam discloses a process as discussed above.

Subramaniam does not disclose using a catalyst as called for in claim 3. However, McClure discloses a similar catalyst for alkylation of paraffins with olefins (the abstract).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the Subramaniam process by employing the McClure catalyst since the McClure's catalyst is superior to other solid catalysts (col. 5, lines 20-27).

Claims 13-18, 20, and 25-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Subramaniam et al (5,907,075) in view of Angstadt et al (5,491,278).

Subramaniam discloses a process as discussed above.

Subramaniam does not disclose regenerating the catalyst by periodically terminating at least one of the reactants, elevating the pressure and/or lowering the temperature (see the entire patent for details).

However, Angstadt discloses a similar process during which the olefin feed is alternatively stopped and started to remove the potential coke-forming moieties (the abstract; col. 6, lines 12-16).

Art Unit: 1764

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the Subramaniam by the method of Angstadt by stopping and starting the olefin feed to flush the coke-forming moieties on the Subramaniam catalyst to increase the life of the catalyst.

Angstadt does not disclose increasing the pressure and/or lowering the temperature within the reactor during the stop of the olefin feed (see the entire patent for details).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the Subramaniam by selecting appropriate temperature or pressure for this period to optimize this period of reaction which is different from the period both reactants reacting in the reactor. Further, it is expected that using any temperature or pressure at this period would yield similar results.

Claims 19 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Subramaniam et al (5,907,075) in view of Angstadt et al (5,491,278) further in view of McClure (4,056,578).

Subramaniam discloses a process as discussed above.

Subramaniam does not disclose using a catalyst as called for in claim 19. However, McClure discloses a similar catalyst for alkylation of paraffins with olefins (the abstract).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the Subramaniam process by employing the McClure catalyst since the McClure's catalyst is superior to other solid catalysts (col. 5, lines 20-27).
